

Lutheran Living

Martin Luther was often criticized for not teaching good works. Others felt that if people were told that salvation was free, no one would have the incentive to do good works. People would simply take advantage of grace.

Luther strongly encouraged Christian living. However, he put it in the proper perspective. Good works follow faith. He repeatedly said that we are justified by faith alone, but faith is never alone. It is a living, busy, active thing, seeking to serve God and neighbor.

Unlike the church of his day, Luther stressed that living our faith is not something done only by those involved with church work. You do not have to take a special vow of poverty, chastity, and obedience to truly live your faith. God places opportunities before us in our daily lives to live as his people, serving others in our various “callings” or “vocations”: in families and among friends; at school and in the workplace; in the marketplace and in our communities.

True “Lutheran living” recognizes that we produce fruits of faith in a variety of simple ways as we go about our daily living. And through us, God cares for others and for his creation. “God’s people please God even in the least and most trifling matters. For He will be working all things through you; He will milk the cow through you and perform the most servile duties through you, and all the greatest and least duties alike will be pleasing to Him.” (“Lectures on Genesis,” Luther’s Works 6:10).

Lutheran Living

Martin Luther was often criticized for not teaching good works. Others felt that if people were told that salvation was free, no one would have the incentive to do good works. People would simply take advantage of grace.

Luther strongly encouraged Christian living. However, he put it in the proper perspective. Good works follow faith. He repeatedly said that we are justified by faith alone, but faith is never alone. It is a living, busy, active thing, seeking to serve God and neighbor.

Unlike the church of his day, Luther stressed that living our faith is not something done only by those involved with church work. You do not have to take a special vow of poverty, chastity, and obedience to truly live your faith. God places opportunities before us in our daily lives to live as his people, serving others in our various “callings” or “vocations”: in families and among friends; at school and in the workplace; in the marketplace and in our communities.

True “Lutheran living” recognizes that we produce fruits of faith in a variety of simple ways as we go about our daily living. And through us, God cares for others and for his creation. “God’s people please God even in the least and most trifling matters. For He will be working all things through you; He will milk the cow through you and perform the most servile duties through you, and all the greatest and least duties alike will be pleasing to Him.” (“Lectures on Genesis,” Luther’s Works 6:10).

REFORMATION 500

Southeastern Wisconsin District Festival Service

November 5 ♦ 3:30 PM

Miller High Life Theatre

500 W Kilbourn Ave ♦ Milwaukee, WI

Twitter.com/MKE_Reform500

Facebook.com/pg/MKEReformation500/events

Freewill Offering for Mission Work in our District

REFORMATION 500

Southeastern Wisconsin District Festival Service

November 5 ♦ 3:30 PM

Miller High Life Theatre

500 W Kilbourn Ave ♦ Milwaukee, WI

Twitter.com/MKE_Reform500

Facebook.com/pg/MKEReformation500/events

Freewill Offering for Mission Work in our District